WORLD DAY FOR CONSECRATED LIFE

Sunday, February 5th, 2012 has been designated by the Church as a day to honor and pray for the women and men in the Consecrated Life. Please pray for those who do so much in prayer for us and pray also for an increase in the Consecrated Life as a Vocation.

The Elijah Cup

Each weekend at Mass we will have our Elijah Cups in the vestibule for a family, individual, or couple to take home and put in a place of honor.

Each day for a week, during prayer time (morning, bedtime or at meals), they pray for an increase and perseverance of vocations. The following Sunday they return the Elijah Cup and it will be passed on to the next person.

Praying for vocations is the most powerful way to support vocations. A vocation is a call from the Holy Spirit, a gift from God that is nurtured in prayer. When we pray for vocations, we lift up to our Father those men and women who he is calling in a very special way. We hope that those who bring the cup home will continue to pray for vocations daily.

Please sign up today in the vestibule and be a part of this ministry.

Save the Date !

Representatives will be at our parish on Sunday, January 29th after the 11:00am Mass in the parish hall. There will be an informative presentation about Montgomery Catholic Preparatory School followed with questions and answers. Anne Ceasar, school president will lead the discussion. Intimacy and Freedom

It is easy to misunderstand Paul in today’s second reading. He recommends that the Corinthians remain celibate; therefore, we might conclude that there is something wrong with marriage. This is not Paul’s intent. Paul was convinced that Jesus would return during his lifetime. With everything about to change, he felt it was not the time to assume the responsibilities of family life.

Today, we still believe Jesus will come but we do not know when. This allows us to recognize that marriage and celibacy each reveal an important quality of discipleship.

Marriage gives witness to the necessity of intimacy in every person’s life. While, celibacy gives witness to freedom. The celibate person is freer to use his or her time and energy for the service of God’s people because he or she does not have the responsibility of spouse or children.

Marriage and celibacy complement each other because every person needs a combination of intimacy and freedom in their life. The celibate requires intimacy—not the sexual intimacy of marriage—but deep, honest relationships with family and friends. And married people must be free enough to realize that their personhood is larger than the roles of spouse or parent. They have a call beyond family to build God’s Kingdom.

Marriage and celibacy are not in competition. They each witness to an essential truth: the need to connect to another person—the call to serve God’s people.

The Faith of the Church

The dignity and holiness of marriage was affirmed by the bishops of the Second Vatican Council. In the Sacrament of Marriage, Christian spouses are consecrated in the duties and dignity of their calling. Their lives are penetrated with the spirit of Christ, which suffuses their whole lives with faith, hope, and charity. They thereby grow in perfection and holiness, giving glory to God (Pastoral Constitution on the Church in the Modern World 48).

Questions of the Week

Jesus’ dramatic healing in the synagogue invites us to recognize the authority and healing power that can come into our lives through the witness of marriage and celibacy.

Adults

Who has shown me the most effective example of married love or the blessings of celibacy? What have I learned from these witnesses?

Children

Can I see ways in which God is present in the love shown between two married people that I know?

Responding to God's Word . . .

Paul clearly believed that every person has a calling from God. The word "vocation" comes from the Latin root "to call." Every person has a vocation to serve God in a particular way. Some do so through the commitment of marriage. Others do so by remaining single.

We can grow in our vocation by recognizing the witness of the vocations that differ from our own. Those who are celibate must claim the importance of intimacy to which marriage witnesses. They must know that unless they build close relationships, their freedom can become empty and sterile. They can become selfish bachelors and self-absorbed spinsters.

Married people must recognize the value of freedom to which celibacy witnesses. Without the freedom to extend their love beyond spouse and family, their lives can become narrow and stifling, even oppressive.

Since we all have been called by God, we should not only live the vocation we have been given, but also learn from the example of those who live another calling. By doing this, we can see more clearly the fullness of God's plan and become the people and the church that God calls us to be.

SUGGESTIONS

Use one of these suggestions or one of your own to respond to God's Word this week.

In the home. Spend some time with the person to whom you feel the closest in your family. Share with him or her how your closeness helps you to live more deeply.

In the workplace or in school. Identify someone who is dealing with separation or divorce. Find a way to offer your support.

In the community. Thank God for those with whom you share life and ask God to help you find the right balance of freedom and intimacy in your relationships.

Meditation Moment

The movie The Exorcist is based on a true story of a boy from Mount Rainier, Maryland. Newsweek magazine wrote of the boy: "After he was admitted to Georgetown University Hospital . . . the boy began to mouth fierce curses in ancient languages and at one point, while strapped helplessly in his bed, long scratches appeared on his body."

The boy survived and now lives near Washington, D.C. This true story recalls how Jesus expelled evil spirits—a sign that God's Kingdom was replacing Satan's Kingdom. It also reminds us that we must finish what Jesus began.

For reflection . . .

What is one way I am working to finish the war against evil that Jesus began?

BE FIRM IN YOUR FAITH AND RESIST [THE DEVIL].

1 PETER 5:9

FROM MISSION BY MARK LINK, SJ

The Prayer of a Witness

Faithful
God, you have made me a part of the human community and given me the power to influence others for good or ill. Allow me to love those closest to me in such a way that others can see the value of intimacy and seek it in their lives. Allow me to see myself as an agent of your Kingdom and serve you so clearly that others may find the freedom to do your will with more conviction and joy. Amen.

Carry this thought in your heart as a guide for your faith journey this week.

I now am taking this kinswoman of mine, not because of lust, but with sincerity. Grant that she and I may find mercy and that we may grow old together.

Tobias' Marriage Prayer
Tobit 8:7

Profile in Faith

Tobias and Sarah

The Book of Tobit tells a fascinating story that shows how God works in the ordinary lives of believers. The sacredness of marriage is reflected in a prayer that Tobias prays with his wife, Sarah, on their wedding night.

This prayer can be used by Catholic couples as an option for their wedding liturgy.
